Criminal profiling works on the principle that each and every criminal - regardless of the level or severity of their crime - will work to a certain set of values. Once the values have been identified they can be used to help law enforcement make a positive identification. Colin Pitchfork (born 23 March 1960) is a British convicted murderer and rapist. He was the first person convicted of murder based on DNA fingerprinting evidence, and the first to be caught as a result of mass DNA screening.
