Sir John Lavery RA (20 March 1856 – 10 January 1941) was an Irish painter best known for his portraits and wartime depictions. During World War I, John Lavery became an official artist for the British government. In 1918, he received a knighthood, and Hazel Lavery became Lady Lavery. A rising doctor, a beautiful heiress, an impulsive young painter, and a poor city girl are entangled by love and betrayal.
