A mirror is an object that reflects light in such a way that, for incident light in some range of wavelengths, the reflected light preserves many or most of the detailed physical characteristics of the original light, called specular reflection. I bought this mirror for me getting older so the magnification is helpful at times, the weight is heavy enough to be stable even if bumped slightly, size is large enough to see whole image right in front, but small enough to be moved easily from table to desk and room to room.
