Palestinians Born in Exile: Diaspora and the Search for a Homeland (review) Celia Rothenberg Shofar: An Interdisciplinary Journal of Jewish Studies, Volume 24, Number 1, Winter 2000. This study describes the search for a homeland by a group of young Palestinians who were born and raised in the diaspora. They grew up outside Palestine and returned to their homeland as a direct or indirect result of the peace process initiated in the early 1990s. Their experiences of returning to Palestine are multifaceted and individual, and they form part of the larger Palestinian migration experience. In the decade following the 1993 Oslo Peace Accords, some 100,000 diasporic Palestinians returned to the West Bank and Gaza. Among them were children and young adults who were born in exile and ...
