The Boy Who Climbed Into the Moon is a 2010 children's novel by David Almond. It is about a boy, Paul, who wants to touch the sky; he then climbs a ladder to the Moon and goes inside. It is about a boy, Paul, who wants to touch the sky; he then climbs a ladder to the Moon and goes inside. THE BOY WHO CLIMBED INTO THE MOON is likewise a bittersweet novel. Characters' experience of loss, longing and persistent sadness are countered by a truly extraordinary journey and, more importantly, by the gradual formation of a community that helps make Paul's journey possible and provides a safe, comforting place to belong upon his return. Lots of illustrations will appeal to readers relatively new to chapter books, as well as the whimsy and preposterous of the premise: a boy who thinks that the moon is not solid, but a hole in the sky. A more-than-quirky cast of characters. The Boy Who Climbed into the Moon By David Almond Illustrated by Polly Dunbar A magnificent tale of crackpot notions and sky-high courage – from David Almond, the master of magical realism, with illustrations by the award-winning Polly Dunbar.
